

About Your Visit

University of Washington Medical Center (UWMC) is a teaching facility. A resident, intern, or student doctor will review your records, talk with you, and perform a physical exam focused on your neurological system.

This doctor will then discuss the initial findings with your neurologist, who is a faculty member of University of Washington School of Medicine. Then, they will return to talk with you together.

Additional information about UWMC can be found online at:

Your Visit to the Neurology Clinic

Welcome! We look forward to seeing you in our clinic and would like to make sure your visit with us is a good one. Please read this brochure before your visit.

How to Make Your Visit a Good One

1. Bring copies of all outside (non-UWMC) medical records.
2. Fill out all the forms we sent you, and bring them with you.
3. Read about traffic, parking, and registration information.
4. Allow enough time for your visit. A new patient visit may take up to 2 hours.

1. Medical Records

We only need the records that relate to your neurological condition:

- Clinic notes from all doctors you have seen about your neurological condition.
- Hospital discharge summaries.
- Test results (EMG, EEG, labs, etc.).
- Imaging films, not just the reports.

Exceptions: You do not need to bring records, results, or films from University of Washington Physicians Network clinics, Roosevelt Clinic, Seattle Cancer Care Alliance, University of Washington Medical Center, and Harborview Medical Center.

Tips for Gathering Your Medical Records

- Doctors and hospitals require your signature to release medical records. Ask them about how to get copies of your records.
- Bring your records to your visit. If this is not possible, have them faxed or mailed to:
