Books on Grief and Loss

Safe Passage

by Molly Fumia

This is an easy-to-read book of meditations on grieving. The author uses quotes and original writings to guide us through the passages of grief toward healing and hope.

Tear Soup

by Pat Schwiebert and Chuck DeKlyen, illustrated by Taylor Bills

This illustrated book is for both children and adults who have lost a loved one. The main character is an old woman named Grandy, who has suffered a major loss. Grandy's tear soup comforts her and helps fill the void in her life that her loss left.

A Time to Grieve

by Carol Staudacher

This book is a companion to help you through the difficult time of grief. It includes meditations that speak directly to you if you are still feeling the effects of your loss. This book can be helpful no matter when your loved one died or where you are in your grieving process.

In Lieu of Flowers

by Nancy Cobb

There is no wrong way to grieve, but the story of how the author managed to face the deaths of her parents and other loved ones provides a healthy example. Written with intelligence and humor, this book reminds us to stay connected with our loved ones, both living and deceased.

Mourning and Mitzvah

by Anne Brener

This guided journal is for anyone who is walking the mourner's path through grief to healing. For those who mourn a death or any kind of loss, or for those who are supporting the bereaved, this book teaches the power and strength of the grieving process.

Midlife Orphan

by Jane Brooks

This book helps adult children understand and grieve the changes that occur in their lives when their elderly parents die. Often we use the word "orphan" to mean young children – but even middle-aged adults can feel the pain of being an orphan.

I started missing you long before you were gone.

I'll keep loving you long after the memories bring you back.
